CON VERGENCE CON GUIDE

CONs are thriving with record turnouts and more shows are popping up all the time! In the following pages we map out where all the cons are located in Florida, Georgia, and South Carolina for you to find the best and live your own adventure!

IMPORTANT NOTICE:

The CONcentric Guide does NOT list show dates or venues. Dates and venues can change with very little notice. So, as an annual print guide we are only listing the show names, type of con, and web site or social media for each event. Be CONcious of these possible changes and look up the shows you're interested in and check their current dates and locations on their official pages.

CONCOSPLAYFEATURE CENTRE ARTEMISTYCK

Cosplayer, craftsman, and host Josh Duarte, known as ARTEMISTYCK to the CON world, has built a reputation for elegant, fabric-driven costumes and striking character transformations that bring beloved icons from a multiverse of fandoms to life. From his very first convention to traveling internationally as a guest, Josh has turned a spontaneous hobby into a creative journey spanning years of craftsmanship, performance, and community. In this interview, he shares how it all began, the projects he's lived through, and the lessons he's learned along the way.

1. When and how did you get into Cosplay?

My first convention was actually Dragon Con 2013. I had never been to a con, nor had I cosplayed before. My friend who lived in Atlanta (I was still living in Florida at the time) invited me and I said "Sure sounds fun! Guess I'll make a costume because that's what they do at these things right?" Haha. Wow. So I created my first ever cosplay and won a contest that very first Friday night. Plus people's reactions to me on the floor were so amazing - I was totally hooked from that point forward.

2. What was that first Cosplay and looking back how would you judge it today?

Thranduil was my first and I still have that robe! It honestly is really well made - I did have some help making it at the time because even though I have a degree in Fashion, I was rusty. It's immaculately tailored and still looks great to this day thanks to my friend Darlene who helped me out. The only thing I definitely am glad I remade was the crown since back then it was made out of polymer, oven-bake clay and oof! It was heavy, fragile and at one point caused my scalp to bleed!

3. What mediums do you use to create your art and which are your most and least favorite to use?

Fabric fabrics and more fabrics. Most of my costumes are sewing-heavy. I do love making a prop but I'm definitely not as well-versed in that area. My least favorite to use is probably stretch fabric just because I'm a woven fabric girly and I'm most comfortable with those.

4. What's your favorite Cosplay project so far, and why?

Most likely my Glinda from 1939 Wizard of Oz. I spent so much time getting her just right - nearly 3 years of on and off work. Plus that film is such a nostalgia-laden treasure that reminds me of my childhood and my grandmother. I watched it so many times growing up and wanted so badly to be pink and sparkly like Glinda - and now I get to be!

5. What Cosplay project do you think you are most recognized for?

Probably a toss up between Thranduil and Glinda with a close second being Lady Tremaine.

6. How far has your cosplay taken you as far as events (to how many and how far away from home have you been), and what sort of roles have you taken on at shows over being just a guest?

I'm super duper lucky to be offered spots as a guest at cons and events across the US and only recently got to travel internationally to Portugal! That was such an incredible experience - I was there helping promote the docu-series Alter Egos that is debuting on Amazon Prime Video on March 6! As far as roles, I've been an educator with panels, emceed and entertained on stage, as well as been a costume contest judge.

7. If you could create a dream Cosplay project without limits what would it be?

Gosh - that's such a toughie. One I really want to do is Super Sailor Moon from the third season - her transformation using the Holy Grail. That's my favorite season of Sailor Moon and my favorite iteration of her outfit. I have plans to make it a reality one day though!!

8. What is the most valuable lesson Cosplay has taught you that you wish you knew way sooner?

Don't believe the hype. And by that I mean, don't let social media or 'cos-fame' get to your head. Just be authentic and create for the love of creating. I fell victim to thinking I was hot stuff at the beginning and made plenty of mistakes with relationships and my own creative process. I've definitely learned a lot since then and try every day to just be grateful I get to create, spend time at cons celebrating my fandoms, as well getting opportunities to get paid to cosplay!

9. Any words of advice for new cosplayers just entering the scene?

HAVE FUN. Literally all it's about. If you focus on the joy, everything else will fall into place. Don't try to force anything.

10. Name a Cosplayer or Cosplayers who inspire you, and why?

Oh gosh that's easy - first person that comes to mind is Beverly of Downen Creative Studios. Her level of artistry is top notch and she is just the kindest, most awesome person. I'm grateful we became friends (even though our first in-person interaction was competing against each other at a costume contest!). But even then it was nothing but love and a shared joy of making. Go give her a follow! She's rad.

11. Where can fans connect with you online?

I'm under most social media (Facebook, Instagram, TikTok, YouTube, etc.) under the handle "artemistryck"!

UNTIL NEXT TIME

The colorful chaos of a convention, the exhilarating panels, and the laughter shared with newfound friends—post-con depression is a sentiment many attendees can relate to. As the convention doors close and the routine of the real world sets in, we can't help but look back with longing for the good times and friends. It can cast a shadow on the post-con experience.

However, amidst the melancholy, it's essential to remember that the end of one convention marks the beginning of the next. The beauty of the convention community lies in its cyclical nature—there is always another event on the horizon, promising new adventures, shared laughs, and the chance to create more cherished memories.

SEE YOU AGAIN SOON!
